From the Diary of A Hudson's Bay Clerk in the Seventies

By O.G.E.-MAS-IES (Little Clerk).

Next morning, and I hoped the tea and crumbs from an empty provision sack, was taking my spell about with the on the head of my small snowshoes to help lift the weight of snow. I suddenly looked round and found that the party had disappeared. On turning and marching back to investigate, I found one of the drivers (Musquatic) a hard young cask with his slick pulled to one side and he was smiling at me. I thought for a minute, then realized it had come to a slow-down, for he was going to leave his load of invaluable ammunition on the ice and no doubt the others would follow suit. This was mutiny—rank mutiny.

All the men were watching me, as I was busy tramping down a cock-pit about twelve feet square. On finishing this I took off my cap and finally went to the office. Then, in a loud voice, I challenged Musquatic in these words: "We would fight. If he was the best man the load could stay on the ice, and if I was, the load would go on intact." A deep silence followed. Musquatic looked me up and down, and finally turning to his sleigh he commenced re-lashing it. A cheer broke from the rest of the men and the outfit went on, leader succeeding leader, and that night we reached The Pas.

Seeing every load unpacked and carried in the store houses, with rations and dog feed given out, I finally went to the office. Dear old Allick M. was a like a ben with her cheeks. "Such a trip you have had," she said, "did you stand it?" and so on. While he talked I was losing my moccasins and duffles (northern travellers know we wrap our feet in squares of dog and do not use moccasins). Every toe was cut and bleeding, matter had formed on the heels of both my feet, and on jerking off my moccasins, the matter was enough for the Chief. He became violently sick at his stomach, and truly it was a nasty sight. I had had them from the men for the last two days.

No doubt some of my readers have experienced the same pang, but of all kinds of pain that is hard to endure, it is when the snowshoes have cut your feet and the next morning as the feet are slowly rubbed off, you must still stand it and tramp on with an unconcerned air, nevertheless biting your lips till the blood comes, and then the pain is unbearable.

Before I wind up the article I must tell you another dog story and a good title for it would be "The Canine Dog." After the seven dog trials had been made up, there were, as usual, several misdeeds with no one wanted, and these gained a pre-eminence by telling the other dogs' faults at feeding time. Notorious among these was a grey husky from Lac du Bonnet, who showed the wolf strain plainly, and was hard to handle. He had to bite something, either you or his train-mate, so I christened him "Wool-go, or 'evil spirit'." We tried him, but he got worse, so was for the present chained up in the wooden cage.

One morning one of our French men, Louis in Liberte, came to my camp, with breakfast, with a very pale face, and addressing the Chief, said, "Hewee, sir, Master Canine has turned cannibal." "What do you mean, Louis?" "Come and see, sir," and on both of us going out to the shed, here was Nevada growling furiously, turning round and round, while biting mouthfuls of living flesh off his haunches and swallowing them, hair and all. The sight was too much for the Chief, and turned him sick. "Kill the brute at once," he said, "and hang him on the ice." So, getting a small revolver, I was very proud of, I fired six rounds into his head and told Louis to drag his body down the ice.

That evening at dog feeding time, he should come staggering up the bank with his head as big as a ball, and his body and neck as the size of a cannon. A council was held, execution was the sentence, and an axe and block obtained. Then the head was severed from his body and the rest of the carcass was taken to the ice, a distance apart. So ended Nevada, and this article.

More Sinn Fein Plots

Accused of Planning to Destroy Property in Liverpool and Manchester.

LONDON.—A sensational incident in the Irish debate in the House of Commons was the revelation by Sir Hanmer Greenwood, chief secretary for Ireland, of Sinn Fein plots to destroy property in Liverpool and Manchester—a revelation which was greeted by Joseph Devlin with the exclamation: "All that was written in Dublin Castle."

Former-Premier Asquith moved a resolution expressing abhorrence of the recent Dublin assassination and condemnation of reprisals and urging immediate steps to bring about Irish pacification. An amendment by Col. John Ward conversely moved into an expression of admiration for the "courage and devotion of the crown forces in Ireland." This was adopted by 233 to 44, and the motion as thus amended was adopted by acclamation and ministerial cheers.

Complete Line To Port McMurtry.
Edmonton.—Premier Stewart has returned from a ten-day trip over the A.G. and W. Railway to Port McMurtry. He says that about $100,000 has been spent by the Government in improvements to the waterways system this fall. During the winter, 30,000 tons will be used in repair work and by next fall it is hoped to have a regular service in operation to Port McMurtry.

McGill Secured $6,321.51.
Montreal.—The McGill University centennial endowment fund reached a grand total of $6,321.51, this exceeding its objective by over a million and a quarter dollars, it was announced in the final statement of the amount of the subscriptions at the banquet which closed the campaign.

To Set Date for Parliament Opening.
Ottawa.—One of the matters which is likely to pass before the Cabinet Council soon, it is thought, will be the setting of a date for the opening of Parliament. Ministers still speak hopefully of January 20 as the opening date, but there is a possibility of a week or so beyond that.

Paying the Price for War

Member of German Reichstag Says People Broken Down Morally.

Berlin.—Bitterness no longer exists in the Reichstag relative to the voting of Appropriations to carry out provisions of the Versailles Treaty. Members of the Chamber denounced the action of the Allies in keeping such a large force of men along the Rhine and in particular assailed France for sending large troops into Germany.

Dr. Zapf, a member of the German People's Party, said Germany's financial situation seemed hopeless. He pointed out that interest charges on the budget alone amounted to 2,500,000 marks and declared the conduct of French officers and their families in the Rhineland was provoking a growing irritation.

"If Russian Soviet troops are declared," should appear on Germany's eastern frontier, they would not find the united international nations of 1918 years, but a people broken down morally."

Rudolf Dietrich, a leader of the Moderate, who shouted, "Louise said the nation's burdens were not the result of the 'infamous conduct of our enemies,' but the sequel of Germany's pre-war policies."

"Germany's collapse," he continued, "was not due to the pacifists, but to the men who paid the price of the nation's ruin and the bath of steel. I predict the time will come when the present treaty will be replaced by an instrument which is true justice. This will be when the workers of France and Germany be come sufficiently powerful to put the Versailles Treaty out of commission."

Speed King Meets Death

Gaston Chevrolet In Fatal Accident At Los Angeles Speedway.

Speedway, Los Angeles.—Gaston Chevrolet, famous racing driver, and Lyall Jolly, mechanic for Eddie O'Donnell, were killed when Chevrolet's car, No. 1, crashed into the grandstand near the close of the 250-mile race.

That evening at dog feeding time, he should come staggering up the bank with his head as big as a ball, and his body and neck as the size of a cannon. A council was held, execution was the sentence, and an axe and block obtained. Then the head was severed from his body and the rest of the carcass was taken to the ice, a distance apart. So ended Nevada, and this article.

John O'Donnell, Chevrolet's mechanic, was seriously injured. Gaston Chevrolet was the youngest of three racing brothers. He was a mechanic for two years before he demonstrated that he was a driver of merit at the 500-mile Memorial Day race at Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1913.

On May 31 last, he won the Premier and the cabinet had come to the deliberate conclusion that it was not desirable at present to enforce martial law in Ireland. He believed it would not help even if it were applied.

Health of School Teachers.
Toronto.—Medical examination of prospective public school teachers in this city to ascertain if they are physically fit before being engaged, is recommended by the management committee of the Toronto Board of Education. At present it costs from $100,000 to $160,000 a year for occasional teachers.

Death of Western Bank Manager.
Medicine Hat, Alta.—The death has occurred here of Edward J. F. Ewing, former manager of the Merchants Bank, who opened the first banking institution in Medicine Hat. Deceased, who was born in London, Ont., in 1867, leaves a widow and three children.

Tariff Inquiry Report.
Ottawa.—A Senographic report given to the House of Commons on the tariff totals 3,660 revision pages, or roughly about 1,100,000 words, and a large part of industrial Ontario has still to be covered. Further hearings of the commission will probably occupy a fortnight or so. The commission left for Hamilton.

Italy Will Not Interfere.
Rome.—If France and England decide to intervene in Greece, Italy must stand aside in order to be faithful to the principle of self-determination, says an article published by the Messagero, it being stated here that the article was "widely distributed."

Want Stringent Marriage Regulations.
Toronto.—The Toronto Licensed Vendors Association has placed its report on record as emphatically in favor of more stringent regulations with regard to the issuing of marriage licenses, stipulating that a physician's certificate should be an essential condition.

Alberta's Lieut. Governor

Poor Pay for Pedagogues

Brakemen Make More Than the College Professors.

Toronto.—At a meeting of the Alumni Association of the University of Toronto, Angus Macdurely, K.C., making a plea for better salaries for professors said that railway brakemen made from $200 to $250 a month and conductors as high as $425 a month. He said that to compare these wages with the pitances received by university lecturers "would be too painful to the lecturers."

New Consul To Canada.
Montreal.—Borislav K. Ryznar, D.Sc. of Prague, has been named consul of the Czech-Slovak Republic to Canada. The quarters of the Czech-Slovak consulate will be at 338 Sherbrooke Street, West Montreal.

Must Break Reign of Terror

No Conciliation in Ireland Possible at Present Time, Says Lloyd George.

LONDON.—In a discussion of the Irish problem in the House of Commons the question of conciliation between the Irish people was raised. Premier Lloyd George, giving his opinion, said that the only way to break the reign of terror has been broken, for the very obvious reason that men in Ireland who would be prepared to enter into negotiations at the present time are not free.

Answering another question, the Premier and the cabinet had come to the deliberate conclusion that it was not desirable at present to enforce martial law in Ireland. He believed it would not help even if it were applied.

Secession Issue in South Africa.
London.—The Times Cape Town correspondent states that substantial progress has been made in the negotiations between the South African (Loyalist) and Unionist (British) groups. The problem now is that Premier Smuts will go to the country shortly after Christmas on the definite issue of secession.

36,000 Acres Of Oil Leases.
Edmonton.—Thirty-six thousand acres of oil leases were filed in the Grande Prairie land office in one day yesterday. It is understood that most of the filings were made on behalf of the Imperial Oil Company. The leases, covered are near the British Columbia boundary.

Dakota Banks Close.
Bismarck, N.D.—Four more North Dakota banks closed their doors today to depleted resources, bringing the total of such closures reported here for the past ten days to thirteen.

Draw the Line at Bulgaria.
Guevea.—Serbia, Rumania and Greece have formally notified the assembly of the League of Nations that they are opposed to the admission of Bulgaria into the league.

Adjourn Congress Chamber.
Athens.—Convocation of the Chamber of Deputies has been adjourned until Dec. 8.

U.S. Expects To Be Consulted Regarding Terms of Mandates

R.C.M.P. Did the Work

Indian Who Escaped From Custody Was Rounded Up.

Winnipeg.—There is quite an odd touch to a story given out by the Manitoba Provincial Police, Louis Houle, an Indian of the Ebb and Flow reserve, was arrested last October and sent to Dauphin jail for a series of thefts. He was to stay 18 months, but escaped Nov. 2, and went back to the reserve. The police went after him but the Indians put up a forcible resistance and they returned without the prisoner. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police were appointed to a detachment sent to the reserve. They succeeded in bringing Houle back, but, so far, have not told how they secured him.

Butter Making Record.
Fargo, N.D.—A North Dakota butter canning factory, Sigsbee, 451,370, has broken the seven days world record for fat production in the junior two-year-old class, producing in seven consecutive days 34,827 pounds of butter fat, the equivalent of 31,097 pounds of 80 per cent commercial butter. The test was made under supervision of the North Dakota Agricultural College, and will be certified to the Holstein Friesian Cattle Congress, which is now being held at Waller, Manitowish, Wisconsin, N.D.

Dividend to Creditors of Trust Co.
London.—The Creditors of the Trust Company, has recently been enabled to declare a first dividend payable to the creditors by virtue of the power conferred upon him by a special act which was passed at the last session of Parliament. The amount of the first dividend is ten cents on the dollar, and is now being paid to these creditors of the Dominion Trust Company, who have claims against the company.

Proposed Farmers' Pool for the Marketing of Wheat
Wheat Growers of Prairie Provinces and Ontario To Be In Plan.
Calgary.—A proposed farmers' pool for the cooperative marketing of wheat in Canada, was outlined by the U.F.A. secretaries' convention by J. H. Murray, assistant general manager of the United Grain Growers. Mr. Murray announced that welcome embodying these proposals has been drawn up by a special committee of the Canadian Council of Agriculture, but that until the sanction of all members of the committee had been obtained, the actual pool would not be made public. Mr. Murray did not name the members of the special committee, but it is understood that they are H. W. Riddell, manager of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company, and Mr. Murray.

Provisional bound to lodge 1921 rent to consist of one representative each of the following organizations: U.F.A., Alberta, Saskatchewan Grain Growers, United Farmers of Manitoba, and United Farmers of Ontario.

Contract holders must sign for a term of five years, and must pay 25 per cent of the cost of the pool. Fifty per cent of wheat acreage, or about 850,000 acres, to be brought into the pool. The cost of operation to be paid from the pool. Wheat grower who signs contract and afterwards sells grain elsewhere—that is, to the pool to pay 25 cents per bushel as liquidated damages to the pool.

In event it is discovered that contract holder is breaking contract, the pool is to be entitled to an injunction to restrain him from such action.

Phone System for Far North To Rescue World from Danger

Will Link Up the Peace River and Grande Prairie Districts.

Edmonton, Alta.—As a result of the big program of construction planned and carried out by the Provincial Government, the close of the year will see another 6,500 miles of pole line added to the telephone system of Alberta with about 16,000 miles of new wire lines available for toll and rural service.

Norman L. Harvey, deputy minister of railways and telephones stated that the contractors will practically complete every foot of the $4,000,000 building program of the present year before the middle of January. This extension of the telephone system carries new lines into almost every section of the province, including the Peace River and Grande Prairie districts.

Generosity Of Rockefeller.
New York.—John D. Rockefeller has given away nearly half a billion dollars, his son, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has given away about $100,000,000, and the total of the gifts is $475,000,000, nearly half of which has been distributed in the last few years.

Washington.—The Government of the United States has informed Great Britain that it does not propose to be excluded from participation in the rights and privileges secured under mandates provided in the treaties of peace. Furthermore, it expects to be consulted regarding the terms of these mandates before they are put into force.

The position of the United States is set forth in a note by Secretary of State Clegg to Earl Curzon, the British secretary of state for foreign affairs, and the specific question discussed is that of the Mesopotamian petroleum fields. Mr. Clegg's note is dated November 20, and was made public following its delivery to the British Foreign Office early last week. It is in reply to a British note of August 14, which, although never been made public and which deals with the application of the principles of equity (of treatment) to the territories of the Near East to be placed under British mandates.

The United States note takes issue with what is described as the British position that mandate agreements and treaties are to be considered only by states that are members of the League of Nations. It states that the United States, as a participant in the war, and a contributor to its successful issue, is entitled to share in the associated powers, the smallest not less than itself, debared from discussion of any of its consequences, or from participation in the rights and privileges secured under the mandates provided in the treaties of peace.

Mr. Clegg says in his note that the United States Government accepts the statement of the British Government that it has refrained from making any claim to the resources of the mandated territories in question "and welcomes your pledges" that it is far from the intention of Great Britain to "establish any kind of monopoly or preferred position in its own interest."

"SEMI-COLD FEET" CHARGE STIRS UP U.F.A. OFFICIALS

Chairman J. H. Stuart
Makes Charge at Secretaries Meeting
TROUBLE OVER CANVASS AMONG
FOREIGN ELEMENT
Fine Teaching for Farmers to Teach them English
Delegate Says.

When one of the U.F.A. secretaries at the afternoon session of their convention recently was accused by the chairman, J. H. Stuart, of Big Valley, of having "semi-cold feet," there was more or less of an uproar. In fact, one of the delegates rose to move a vote of censure on the chair.

The discussion was in connection with the membership drive and the present time being waged by the U.F.A., and Delegate Muir, of Leduc, recited the difficulties the canvassers were under in that particular district in dealing with the foreign element. It appears that included in the 55 which is being secured from each new member is an item of $2 for the Grain Growers' Guide, and this was a great sticking point, inasmuch as the people referred to could not read English.

Another delegate stated that he thought the objection raised by this foreign element was well taken. "While I admire the enthusiasm of the chairman," he said, "as a farmer, I do not want to see a man anywhere that he is not getting his money's worth for."

The vote of censure was not, however, passed, and the incident closed.

Satisfactory Report.
Several of the secretaries gave very satisfactory reports of the manner in which the drive was being conducted in their respective districts. In several cases the question of the foreign element was referred to. It was pointed out by one of the speakers that instances were known of these people living within six or eight miles of a U.F.A. local and not knowing anything about their organization.

E. J. Garland, of Bow River, which constituency, by the way, has been leading all throughout the drive, mentioned that he had met with no difficulty in organizing his district, and in no case had he met with a refusal, while Delegate Shields, of Macleod, stated that although there had been bad crops in his particular neighborhood, in some cases for two or three years, one canvasser on the first day secured $115, and they were going around securing 100 per cent. of the farmers as members.

Should Teach English.
As far as the foreigners were concerned, Delegate Muir, of Cassidy, stated that some time ago he had spent six weeks in a Russian camp, and as a result of his experience felt much sympathy for these people. "A good many of our institutions are not giving them a square deal," he remarked. He thought it would be a fine thing for the U.F.A. to get in touch with them and teach them English.

Mr. Poucke, of Stonewall, related his experience in dealing with Hollanders, which brought the comment from Rice Sheppard that it was the best solution he had ever heard of and might well be acted upon by all the secretaries in the future.

"School of Citizenship"
An interesting address was delivered by H. E. Flett on "Pop." He asked what were the secretaries going to give farmers in return for the money they had given them in the drive, and what would possibly amount to $100,000 before it was over. "It is in the school of citizenship," he said, "should be the first thing. That was what the U.F.A. primarily stood for. Responsibility rested with locals to co-operate with each other and the officials of the organization."

At some of the meetings of the locals, said the speaker, "there is nothing more important to discuss than proper poison, instead of some of the big basic principles that confront us. For instance, do farmers realize that the recent increase in railway rates mean that 25 cents added to every bushel of wheat. That in itself should be worth discussing during the winter." This speaker added that the great thing was to get the people thinking.

Men or Women
Another interesting address was delivered by Mrs. M. L. Shaw, president of the U.F.W.A. This lady remarked that there were about 30,000 male members, but only 3,000 women. "Are the majority of the U.F.A. members back-lash?" she asked, amid laughter. She argued that rural women had not the opportunity for the social life of life. It was essential that they should have time for this occasionally. There were community problems that women were peculiarly fitted to solve, and matters in connection with schools. Now that women had the franchise they should fit themselves to deal with such questions just as intelligently as men. She agreed with Mr. Flett that women did not take their citizenship seriously enough. Interesting statements on women's work were also made by Miss Kidd, the secretary of the U.F.W.A., and a number of other women members. The gist of their remarks was that the old idea that women should stay home was now out of date and obsolete.

One of the most well thought out addresses of the whole convention was that delivered by Mrs. S. M. Gunn, of Paradise Valley, on the work of the junior U.F.A., which this lady claimed was the most constructive work that could be accomplished by their association.

At the evening session, J. E. Brownlee dealt with the work of the legal department, while C. J. Ford explained the principles of proportional representation.

Rancher murdered in midnight battle on border of Alberta

LETHBRIDGE.—Word reached the city late Tuesday night, the 23rd from Coult's of a running affray near Sweet Grass, in the south-west of the province, which was the work of Henry Jacobson, a well known rancher, who lived 17 miles west of Sweet Grass. He was shot dead, at close range, on the hour of midnight, Monday. The bullet entered just above the heart.

The shooting followed an alleged hold-up by Jacobson on Monday morning, in which he is said to have held up a man named Bob Meers, near Kelvin, Montana, taking a quantity of money from him, which Meers was conveying in an auto.

A Midnight Battle
It appears that a car containing Immigration Officer Walker, Harry Watkins, who was driving the car, Mike Swigan, and a man called Casey, of Harvey, Montana, started out to search Jacobson's place to locate the stolen horse. Whether Jacobson was aware of the approach and purpose of the party is not clearly known.

The car containing the first party named was met by midnight by another containing Jacobson, a man named Haxton, of Edmonton, who was employed by Dygert, of Edmonton, a horse dealer; Jim Purcell, of Sweet Grass, and Connie Shan.

The cars with the two parties met some six miles west of Sweet Grass. The sight of the car with Walker and his party, Jacobson is said to have drawn his car across the road and to have proceeded with his gun to the car, where he shot at the occupants to halt, and to get out of the car. They did.

Herbert Jacobson spotted Walker and the shot at him that he was the man he wanted, he is alleged to have proceeded to beat him up and to have left him lying on the road, partly in a bad condition. The rest of the party got Jacobson off his man, when he turned and made for Swigan, firing him up the road.

All that was heard and seen then was the sound of a shot, with Jacobson staggering, and falling.

Running up to him, the others discovered that he lay dead with a gun by his side.

"Killed By Unknown Hand"
At the inquest held at the Thompson Hotel, Sweet Grass, on Tuesday, with the Coroner called from Shelby, the City Attorney and City Clerk present, a verdict was returned of "killed by an unknown hand."

It was brought out at the inquest that it was a bullet from Immigration Officer Walker's gun that entered the body of Jacobson, but the evidence went on to show that Walker could not have fired the shot, as at the time the shot was heard he was lying helpless on the ground as the result of the mauling he had received from Jacobson, and was just at the time being picked up by Purcell. It is also alleged that Swigan had an interest in the horse that was stolen from Meers, and that he was drunk at the time of the midnight encounter.

It is said that he was also drunk in the witness stand at the time of the inquest, and denied having anything to do with the shooting. None of the men in the affray has been placed under arrest, but all are under police observation.

He was well known in South Alberta. He left a wife and three children.

 The dogs, which had risen to stand for a tense moment with rigid muscles, resumed their former position in the corner, white fangs bared and neck bristles erect.

Sagehen, the Algonquin, broke the silence with a question.
 "Why has White Hawk, your brother, taken himself from the eyes of his people?" he asked fiercely, staring his blazing eyes on the half-breed.

"How am I to know that?" flashed Darbo snidely.

The Indian turned towards the forest, and stood, his long arms flung across his massive chest, his gray eyes staring beyond the red stream where the silent tamaracs; Darbo slowly moved a little closer to the light. "Dutton crept about the spluttering stream, his hands clenched, his heavy black beard and face twisted in an ugly frown. The other white man, who had been his seat on the stone, watched and waited, an enigmatical smile on his lips. The Algonquin, however, and again fastened his eyes on the half-breed.

"The forest is big and its trails lead always somewhere," he said dramatically. "The spruce, the fir, the hemlock are many, but always, there is a lake into which they empty. From the forest, the trail leads to the lake. The forest trails are hidden in the spray of the stream; a blood-red trail stretches away to the west, and at the end is vengeance. From there he has sought for the end of the red trail, and twenty years hence he will find it, for the end of the old woodland trails, the white ribbon of streams, the star-dotted roof of his long hair ground might lead the red mist that flows from hatred."

"But," he said, his voice growing deeper, "Sagehen has never killed save in the light. Foot to foot and shoulder to shoulder with his enemy, he has fought and killed. He has never tried to forget the red trail, tried to remember only the old trails and streams. But—"

He ceased speaking and stood with lowered head. "White man may forget, but Sagehen, he cannot. He is always here," he cried, striking his breast, "and the red mist is always here." He pointed to the forest where the stars were dropping lower over the forest.

"Once more he looked straight into the eyes of the half-breed."

"And now Sagehen again sees the red trail stretching across the upland, growing redder and deeper, and calling to him to follow it. From the time that he learned that his aged white brother had been killed by some enemy, the trail has called."

The aged trapper was Sagehen's friend. He saved Sagehen from the Rapids, many months ago. He fed him when he was hungry, he nursed him when he was sick. He was a good man. He was Sagehen's brother. He followed the red trail many days and nights, in vain, once more to follow him. One morning his sore, weary gaze took in the face of the man present. Then he was gone.

For the space of a minute, following the Algonquin's departure, silence fell on the three in the cabin. Dalton stood slowly from before the window and stood above Darbo.

"Did you kill Old Man Farney?" he asked in anxious tones. "Come, speak up, did you?"

"Like a flash the half-breed sprung from his stool and backed behind the altar, snatching his knife. "Keep away from me!" he cried.

"You touch me, and I will die," he said. "As he spoke, the larger of the bushes grew a little darker and cooing, belly low, and long tongue, licking his spiked lips."

"If I say so, Dalton, these dogs tear you to bits. I know. You keep off, dat's all."

"What's the matter in here?" spoke a gruff voice at the door. Dalton turned, and a twisted smile flashed across his face. He had just rested on the four men who had just retired.

"Hello, George," he greeted the speaker, "just in time for the entertainment. Darbo has been drinking and is inclined to be ugly;

There are as many different varieties of tea as of roses—but only ONE Red Rose Tea.

Red Rose is a blend of about a dozen varieties of teas, chiefly hill-grown ASSAMS—the richest and strongest tea grown.

The skillful blending of these teas produces the delightful and distinctive Red Rose flavor.

The rich, strong ASSAM leaves in the Red Rose package are so full of tea essence that three teapotsful go as far as five of ordinary tea.

Red Rose Coffee is as generously good as Red Rose Tea.

I want to tick his dog on my because I used little badinage with him. This Mr. Timberley, he introduced me with such a friendly bowing and waving his hand towards the man on the stairs. I knew what he meant to say to help him out.

Gregg, a short, heavy set man, twenty-eight years of age, with round, closely cropped head and long face, lay with his eyes closed, his head on the two-faced figure of the man before him, and grined.

"You'll do," he said with a lean, tight, turning to Dalton, he asked: "What's the 'Mr.' wrong, Albert? Your face is black as a cloud."

"Nothing," Dalton answered, "only Sagehen, the Algonquin, has lost the red trail again. Old Man Farney's knife is gone to get his share. Gregg took a dose of tobacco, and clamped unavailingly for a second or two."

"Well, what of it?" he asked. "What of it?" cried Dalton, his dark eyes flashing. "You ask that! You ask that as though it were no news to you, Gregg!"

"Well, for that matter, it isn't," he said. "I've been thinking of it ever since I was up there, at Cave Hamlet, the day Daddy Farney was killed, my 'overdaddy' the Indian, 'Dorkin' who he intended to do."

"I was close enough to hear that limb-of-the-devil, Danny Farney, promise his something to me, and I know that you had something to do with the 'knife' he chuckled. "Did you?"

Dalton turned on him quickly, an ugly scowl blackening his face. "Well, you have a lot of nerve," he said. "I'll tell you that question, but you've got nerve enough to get anything. Some day one of your awkward questions is going to get you into trouble. I mean that."

"I'm not a member, when you're up here, you're in bad man's land, savvy? So," he said, "I'll tell you that question, but you've got nerve enough to get anything. Some day one of your awkward questions is going to get you into trouble. I mean that."

"One of the other men spoke 'Would you mind going to see your clerk, whatever they're' he asked. 'I'm dead, but I want to get back to my cabin.'"

"Right you are, Harry," got in the somewhat disgruntled Gregg. "But first, Albert, maybe you'd enlighten us to how this Indian Sagehen's got out on the red trail is going to affect our plans?"

"How does a drowned rat in a mink blusher affect the porridge?" snarled Dalton. "I tell you it's going to play the very devil with our plans, that's what it's going to do. That Algonquin, that Dorkin, are as thick as a couple of marooned loads on an island, and you've got to get your bottom Dorkin, if he's injured enough to kill the murderer of one of our men, he's injured enough to do it for another even if he has to call out his own damned rifle from the Bay of White Water, to help him. You'll admit he's no fooling for us. That's why I've tried to get him with us."

He ceased speaking and glanced from face to face of the men, grinning about him. "Old Man Farney's thing," he went on, "isn't it? 'What's the matter with everything, it's not going to be so easy for us to rid this Province. Wait—' as Gregg added, going to speak through you can have your say. I've gone to a lot of trouble to plan this thing, and it means money to every man of us—and more money than money of us—' he added, flashing a look at the big man by the table.

his beady eyes glowing with hatred. "You mean about him?" queried Gregg, with a grin. "He's so, so."

The half-breed gazed up the long knife from the floor and took a significant gesture. "I spoke," he said, "I spoke a few words to him. I said, 'I wonder you did not—' he called me 'Daddy Farney.'"

He laughed, but nobody joined him. Dalton wheeled on the half-breed, his face had gone suddenly white, and a quiver shook his brawny arms as he proceeded to roll up his sleeve. "What you going to do?" cried Gregg, with a grin.

"I'm going to give this half-breed what I've asked to give him ever since I first set eyes on his sneaky face," answered Dalton grimly, "and you fellows are going to stand by and let me do it. You hear me, and, by God, you keep out of this, we'll see if I allow an injury to call me a murderer."

Gregg sank back on a stool, and Dalton lifted again a little hickory wingstick from the rack. "Gregg," he commanded, "take your rifle and keep an eye on those bushes. Then be a man, and don't let them. Darbo, put down that knif—"

"I'll see you—," commenced the half-breed. But one of the men standing behind him struck his hand so that the knife fell to the side with a clatter, and gave him a push forward.

Dalton caught him by the scruff of the neck and shook him a dose of shakes. "Now, my little fellow, be a man, and don't let them. Darbo, put down that knif—"

Canadian War Memorial in France

Edifice As a Permanent Residence for Fifty Scholarship Students From Canada.

A complimentary project, thus far only projected, brought the Hon. Philippe Roy to Canada again recently. This embraces the erection in Paris, as a war memorial to Canadians who fell in France, of an edifice to be known as "La Maison des Canadiens Canadiens" as a permanent residence of fifty scholarship students from Canada. Such a residence, it is claimed, apart from its sentimental interest, is a necessity for the entire success of the scheme, as the $1,200 allotted to each student barely covers his requirements. The project has been received enthusiastically in Paris and the Government of France has donated a suitable site for the building. The industrial committee, further its general aims, has been formed, including Marshall Foch, Ex-President Poincaré, the Minister of Education, and a host of other men of renowned letters and savants. A ladies' auxiliary of high distinction has also been chosen.

This memorial, it is estimated, will cost $500,000 and is the most significant kind of monument to the heroic of those Canadians buried in France. Of the sum required $60,000 has been raised by the Canadian colony in Paris, and the remainder could not doubt easily be collected in Canada from its wealthy men. This, however, it is thought, would deprive the project of its national character, and it is intended to secure a large number of small subscriptions instead of a comparatively small number of large ones.

Land Pays for Itself in One Year

Striking Example of What Can Be Accomplished On Western Canada Farms.

The low price of good land in Western Canada is one of the chief attractions to the farmer in older settled communities such as the eastern and middle-west states where similar land costs ten times as much and very often cannot be purchased at any figure.

It has been repeatedly pointed out that the cheaper land of Alberta or Saskatchewan will produce just as heavy crops of grain as will that costing upwards of $300 an acre. An example of this has just come to hand. Chas. Gray purchased land at Masville in Central Alberta for $28 an acre. He has just shipped his first crop to market. At the current market price of wheat his land has yielded him at the rate of $66 an acre—almost twice what was paid for the land from the first crop.

There are no trees on the Falkland Islands.

Planes For India. The British Government has presented to the government of India the loaned Dr. Hamilton and Asatropians. Some of the planes have been turned over to local governments and administrations, others to raising prices of bird flying clubs, and the remainder to former aviation officers living in India.

Medicine Hat Man is Murder Victim

Found in His Home
Monday Morning with his Skull Crushed

MEDICINE Hat, Nov. 30.—Claude Emery, a former Calgary taxi driver, was found dead with his skull smashed, at his home in Medicine Hat on Monday morning. The police state that it is a clear case of murder, and they are searching for a woman and a man who were known to be with Emery on Saturday

The dead body of Emery was found on Monday morning, by a friend who had called to see him. It is thought that he had been hit a heavy blow over the head with a club while he slept. His skull was fractured and it is the opinion of medical men that the blow was inflicted while Emery was asleep. Considerable mystery surrounds the killing but it is thought his death was the result of an underworld quarrel. With this theory in mind, the Medicine Hat police are looking for a prostitute and her partner, who are thought to be the last to see Emery alive

A Huge Success

The Ladies of the "Church of the Assumption" at Burdett, are to be most heartily congratulated on the tremendous Success of their Bazaar and Dinner held last Saturday the 27th. November.

This success is all the more notable when one thinks of the difficulties that the farmers all around have had to face, shortage of Crops, and the falling price of Wheat through the manipulations of the Wheat Profiteers and Grafters, who have been entirely unchecked by the Government, who in fact appear to be, their true friends, so that the Farmers shall never have the money to dare to have a Political Body of their own, to protect the Farmers in making the Laws, so that the Farmers should not be swindled.

In spite of all this, these Ladies put such work and energy into making this Success and their untiring efforts brought Huge Success, which they may well be proud of, when you hear that they took about $950 to nearly $1000 for their day's work.

Praise to whom, praise is due
